K.V.S. Sarma
Professor of Law & Registrar

In the globalised world with integration of national economies in the world market within the frame work of WTO, business has taken a central stage. As a consequence, business corporate laws have a trend towards universalisation. Therefore, knowledge of basic principles of management and business laws is needed by all employees in the corporate world at different levels to carry on business transactions within and outside the country. In any MBA course, usually management and management skills are taught. In general, in any company or business entity, persons holding MBA degree are managing the affairs of a company. However, as they are not having thorough knowledge in Company Law, Labour Law and Industrial Law and Commercial Law, they feel handicapped even in management of the corporate body. with a view to fill this gap and to create new synergies by bringing management and law together, NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad has started an innovative course "MASTERS DEGREE IN BUSINESS LAWS AND ADMINISTRATION." In this course the University offers twenty four subjects, with twelve subjects of 'MANAGEMENT' and twelve subjects of 'LAW'. This type of course is a unique course of its kind. I hope this course shall enrich all professional managers and others who wish to work in the Corporate sector. I wish you all a good luck.

About NALSAR

NALSAR's curriculum is inspired by the UGC Curriculum Development Committee (CDC) Report. Recommendations of the CDC have been updated to bring them in consonance with globalising India, pluralism and social integration and to weave in concerns of poverty, gender and disability into the legal curriculum. To aid practical appreciation of issues, Clinical Legal Education is an integral component of the course curriculum, which also promotes inter-disciplinarity and integration between Law, Social Sciences and Humanities.

Teaching Methodology

In order to develop professional skills in budding lawyers, NALSAR imparts instruction in simulated settings such as Moot Courts. Individual and one to one interaction is encouraged. Each student has a Faculty Advisor, who is a counsellor for curricular as well as co-curricular activities.

Study materials accompany instructions in each course to promote intensive and interactive learning. Instructions are given through lectures, seminars, group and individual tutorials. Skills of reading, research, analysis, writing and speaking are developed through project assignments and presentations. Collaborative teaching is undertaken in some courses to maximise on available expertise and to promote inter-disciplinary understanding.

Code of Conduct & Academic Responsibility

The University takes a pro-active position on all matters relating to professional growth and an appropriate Code of Conduct for the entire University Community - Students, Faculty and Non-Teaching Staff is in place.

Our expectation is that all members of the NALSAR family will observe decorum in all their relations with each other. The University also recognises the indispensability of statutory provisions in this regard.

In furtherance of its commitment to an environment of honesty, fairness and mutual respect, NALSAR takes serious cognisance of acts of misconduct that include cheating in academic exercises, plagiarism, misrepresentation and interference of any kind in the access of fellow students to University services, among others.

The Code of Conduct and Academic Responsibility consisting of substantive and procedural provisions to sanction disciplinary action against derogatory acts on the part of any member of the University community is a part of NALSAR's policy.

Tuned in Faculty

Teachers at NALSAR build bridges for students to support them across trying times both in and out of the classroom. Outside class, these times could be connected to economic hardship, emotional turmoil, English language difficulties, confusion about career choices or diversified counselling for appropriate and reachable career goals. In class, there is a constant dialogue with students on issues of contemporary concern and curricula constantly match the changing times.

Library & Information Services

It is necessary to have not just a library but a rich library that meets the specific requirements of aspiring professionals and dedicated teachers. In an attempt to bridge distance and maximise access to law related literature, NALSAR is proud of its fully automated library that provides extensive access to a range of resources.

Disability Access

With a high priority on affirmative action across the range, NALSAR is very conscious of the need to build disability access into all its facilities; building, research, outreach and library resources. In tune with the UGC mandate, NALSAR has provided resources and access in Braille.
