Message From the Registrar's Desk

NALSAR University of Law has proved to be the most preferred destination for aspiring legal and now management learners as well from across the world. The University consistently attracts the best faculty and the crest of students for its Bachelors, Masters and Doctoral programmes. NALSAR has a rich tradition of pursuing excellence and has continually re-invented itself in terms of academic excellence. Students are exposed to research based academics and a host of sporting, cultural and organizational activities on its vibrant Campus.

NALSAR has in-depth research culture which is committed to the assessment of professionals in all its diversity. By instituting chairs, fellowships and scholarships, we seek to further strengthen independent research, in a climate of intellectual rigour and academic freedom. We are also upscaling our capacity to develop and disseminate print, electronic and audio-visual knowledge resources, thus enabling us to reach out and deepen our dialogue with civil society.

The primary perspective, rooted in our commitment to the philosophy of law, asks what is right and good in global justice, Public Law and Criminal Law. The second investigates the internal structure of law as it operates in practice, so as to picture the ways in which law falls short of what it promises, particularly in areas such as Competition Law, Banking and Finance, Property Law and Intellectual Property Rights. In this regard students of NALSAR explore the possibilities in which law might be part of the solution, and also endeavours to explore the possibilities in which law has become part of the problem – specially the management.

We highly value our partnership with recruiters, alumni and friends of NALSAR and remain committed to making your recruiting experience productive and positive. I invite the recruiting organizations and graduating students to find the best match between their needs and capabilities.

Wish you all the best!

About the Course

*"There's certainly a need for people with a knowledge of both management and law, across sectors such as marketing, sales, supply chain, and those involved in the development of intellectual property," says T. Sreedhar, managing director, TMI Networks, a leading talent sourcing firm in Hyderabad.

In the globalised world with integration of national economies in the world market within the framework of the WTO, business has taken centre stage. As a consequence, business and corporate laws need to have a greater focus on universalisation. Therefore, knowledge of basic principles of management and business laws is needed by all employees in the corporate world at different levels to carry on business transactions across geographic boundaries. In any MBA course, usually management and management skills are taught. In general, in any company or business entity, persons holding an MBA degree manage the affairs of a company. However, as they do not have sufficient knowledge of Company Laws, Labour Laws, Industrial Laws and Commercial Laws, they feel handicapped even in the management of corporate bodies. With a view to bridge this gap and to create new synergies by bringing management and law together, NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad has started an innovative course "MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (MBA) - BUSINESS REGULATIONS." This type of course is unique and is the first of its kind in India.

The course gives an understanding of the impact of regulatory and policy changes that influence the business sector. A working knowledge of business laws and their application helps one to minimise the impact of such changes on their business operations.

It is important that legal dimensions of business are not an after-thought in the business strategy development process. This course helps one to effectively integrate law into their strategy development policies, solve complex business problems, and protect and leverage one's company's resources.

A synthesis of business and corporate laws into strategy development will enable one in performing additional duties and assuming positions of importance.

This course in business laws and management is particularly suitable for both law and non-law graduates who aspire to advance in their career by gaining a comprehensive understanding of business laws.

The course offers a comprehensive suite — ranging from the basic such as General Principles of Law, Contract Law, and Company Law to contemporary courses on business laws such as Securities Laws, International Trade Laws, Taxation Laws, Intellectual Property Laws — that focuses not only on conceptual knowledge but also on practical application in the course of a business.

Topics such as International Business Laws and Company Laws not only help identify which vehicle is most suitable for doing a specific business but also gives practical insights into formation processes which include pointers regarding the types of financing, incorporation documents, and the concerned nodal and regulatory authorities.

Synthesis of knowledge in business laws, administration and corporate laws helps one to examine strategies, analyse policies, make effective business decisions, and also resolve business related problems whilst understanding the implications of all the choices available.

The curriculum has been designed to keep abreast of vibrant market dynamics with the assistance of an expert committee, which comprises leading academicians from NALSAR and industry experts. Upon joining the programme, one gets access to a student pool from various academic and professional backgrounds comprising Lawyers, Engineers, Entrepreneurs and Business Managers from various reputed companies such as Infosys,

Leo Burnett, HSBC, HDFC and Axis Bank to name a few. With the professors hailing from various B-schools, Universities and Law Colleges, students not only hear alternate perspectives on ideas and experiences from across the management spectrum on the application of business laws but they also gain industry contacts for life!

Legal Foundation of The Financial Sector

Considering the heterogeneous diversity of the students, a legal foundation relating to the financial sectors has been laid down. In order to bring the whole batch on a single platform with Laws relating to Contracts, Torts, Company Affairs, Banking Regulations, Insurance Laws and regulations, SEBI and Corporate Affairs, Competition Laws, IT Laws, International Trade Laws and Conventions, Laws pertaining to Mergers and Acquisitions and so on, which are the essential ingredients that form the lifeline of diversified activities for organizations in the financial sector.

This course particularly equips the student to outperform and emerge as a leader in a highly competitive and challenging corporate environment. The course acts as a synergy to integrate not only management practice but also includes the legal dimension which in today's time is an inseparable part in any corporate function. Therefore, the course is not merely meant to train managers but to create future leaders and flag bearers, capable of taking decisions that would impact not just the institution but the future of the nation.
