14. Make notes on the following passage.

New non-fat dry milk is gradually becoming a substitute for fresh natural dairy milk. In hundreds of cities all over the world dairy supply corporations are supplying pasteurized milk in bottles, packets and sachets to the public. A large portion of the milk thus supplied is not from the farm but from the factories. There are two reasons for this trend. The first reason is an economic one. The places of consumption of milk and production of milk are far removed. The production of milk varies according to seasons. Milk, abundantly produced at a particular place in a particular season has to be conserved to be consumed at a far away place in a different season. Naturally, it becomes necessary to produce milk powder which is easy to preserve and transport. The other is a physiological reason. Modern man is finding it necessary to reduce excess fat in his food. This excess fat is responsible for serious obesity, dangerous over-weight and damaged health. The increased incidence of cardiovascular disease necessitates the discovery of a substitute for rich creamy natural milk. Now non-fat milk powder is a good substitute for natural milk. It is nothing but good milk with all its proteins and vitamins but with much reduced fat. The discovery of the methods of drying milk has helped in better preservation and quicker transportation of milk. We should not consider milk made from milk-powder inferior in quality.
